

The tree is executed depth first. As a result, each test determines whether a compound statement is executed. If the test is true, that compound is executed. If it gets to the otherwise, that statement is executed without a test. In the actual implementation if one test is true, only one statement is executed and then the when loop is exited.